On 21 January 1952, over 300 young military personnel returned to Mukden after completing their training in the USSR. These young men were recruited in February 1951 in the Northeast Military Area to receive short-term training for special functions. They were the first group to return with training completed. Over 100 will be assigned to an armored army group in Mukden while the rest will go to various field armies to assist staff officers and Soviet advisers in training special forces units. They were to await specific orders in Mukden.
